【解答例 1】

It is important to go to university to get a degree in order to have a better life. These days, a standard undergraduate degree is a requirement for most jobs, regardless of the field, and without one, employment options are seriously limited. While having a successful career is clearly an important part of a good life, the means to a better job is not the only reason why going to university is important. The time spent at university is critical in the development of people into well-rounded individuals who have the ability to solve problems and cope with the stresses of life. At university, there are numerous opportunities to develop social skills which are extremely important in both a person's professional and personal life. (124 words)

【解答例 2】

I don't think it's absolutely necessary to get a degree from a university in order to enjoy a better life. To many people, leading a better life used to mean securing a job at a leading corporation, receiving a high salary, and having a happy family. So in the past, a degree from a certain university may have led to that stereotypical goal. However, in this world of changing, diverse values, you need to be learning new things constantly if you want to adjust to new situations, which will help you to lead a better life. What you have learned at university may be useful initially, especially to get a job, but the knowledge will be obsolete in the future. (120 words)
