

I

- 1 ① 大学で数学を専攻することになった筆者が文学から離れることに対する先生の残念な気持ちを伝えている。(48字)
② 筆者が文学を愛する気持ちは変わらないのに文学から離れると先生が考えてしまったことを残念と思っている。(50字)
- 2 卓越した小説や完璧な詩を読んだときに抱く感動、つまりここに美しいものがあり、あらゆる構成要素が全体として調和のとれた形の中に完璧にまとまって存在しているという感動は、美しい証明を読んだときに数学者が経験する感動と同じである。
- 3 eの文字を一度も使わないこと。(15字)
各章を前の章の半分の長さで書くこと。(18字)
- 4 (1) どういうものであれ、月や地球のような1つしかないもの。(27字)
(2) 手のような人に2つあるものや、白と黒のような対をなすもの。(29字)
- 5 根底にある構造や型、規則性にあふれる宇宙の一部である人間が文学を作り出すゆえに文学も型や構造を好む。その型や構造を説明する人間が持つ最善の道具が数学であるから、数学を文学の中に見いだすことができる。(99字)

II

- 1 (A) only (B) better (C) apart (D) away (E) instead
- 2 (イ) like (ロ) on (ハ) in (ニ) by (ホ) with
- 3 (5番目) are (9番目) of
(Ask yourself why you are considering the pursuit of a particular goal)
- 4 (5番目) yourself (9番目) less
(Not taking care of yourself will make you less efficient and effective)

Ⅲ

(1)

When I watch a film, I focus mainly on the characters because they bring the story to life. Take one of my favorites, the animated film, Shrek. The story follows a familiar fairytale format. The hero overcomes various obstacles to rescue a princess who has been locked in a tower. They fall in love and get married. The atmosphere also moves in a predictable line from dark to light. This doesn't matter. What I and millions of other people loved about the film when it came out were the characters. Many talented people worked together to create these. The animators, the actors, and the writers all did a wonderful job. (110 words)

(2)

When speaking a foreign language, you should pay more attention to correctness than to creativity or speed. Making minor mistakes may not prevent foreign people from understanding you, but if you make a lot of these, people will have a negative impression of you. They will assume you are lazy or unintelligent. Making major mistakes, on the other hand, can have serious consequences. Say you are injured in a traffic accident while on holiday overseas and you are taken to a hospital. If you use the wrong word to tell the doctor where you feel pain, you may receive the wrong treatment. (102 words)

(3)

I think the most important quality for a leader is intelligence because you have to solve problems both within and outside your organization. If, for example, you are the leader of your country's government, you first have to find strategies to hold onto your position. Other ambitious politicians in your party will be constantly trying to take your place. Then you will have to deal with your rivals in other parties because they also will make constant efforts to remove you from power. Finally, you will have to work out how to approach the challenges facing your country in ways that voters approve of. (104 words)

Ⅳ

A

1 □    2 ハ    3 □    4 イ    5 ニ    6 ハ

B

1 ニ    2 ハ    3 イ    4 イ    5 □    6 ハ